The Heart Fund

You may know of a friend or relative suffering or even dying from heart disease. This may not be surprising as heart disease is the second major cause of natural deaths in Singapore, accounting for about one-third of all deaths here.

In 2005, The Heart Fund was established by the NUHCS to assist its needy patients and support continuous medical research and education programmes in the field of cardiovascular. Your generous gift will be channelled to any of the three worthy causes:

Help Patients in Need

Being diagnosed with heart disease is already a distressing experience. Imagine sufferers and patients having to worry about paying for medical treatment as well. Even with the highly subsidised treatments that people in Singapore enjoy, the medical costs for heart disease are a concern to many people, especially those from low-income families.

Help Move Medical Research Forward

The medical knowledge, treatments, devices and medications that NUHCS has today are a result of research. Because of research, less invasive treatment methods are available today to allow patients to return home in a shorter span of time. However, research is costly in terms of both, time and funding.

Help Enhance Patient Care through Education and Training

Education and training for our doctors, nurses and ancillary medical specialists cannot be static. They must be continuous to ensure that the staff is kept abreast of the latest medical knowledge, as well as new and innovative treatments and procedures, to enable the delivery of the latest and best possible care to patients.

We need your generosity to help us continue our vital work and aid our needy patients at the NUHCS.
