About The NUHCS Heart Fund

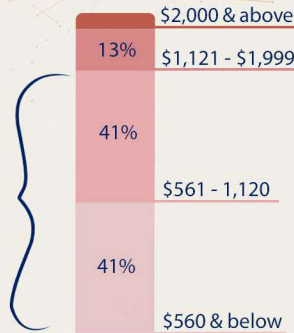

The NUHCS Heart Fund is a sub-fund of NUHS Fund Limited (UEN: 201203593Z), established in 2005 by the National University Heart Centre, Singapore (NUHCS) to assist financially disadvantaged patients on their journey towards better heart health, and renewed hope in rebuilding a stronger, healthier tomorrow. As a national centre in Singapore for the treatment and management of complex cardiovascular diseases, NUHCS serves as a referral institute to provide comprehensive treatment solutions to the most challenging heart, lung and circulatory diseases.

INSIGHTS & Impacts

More than 70% of our applicants come from the lowest 20% per capital income of our community, measured by Department of Statistics (Household Income), 2024.

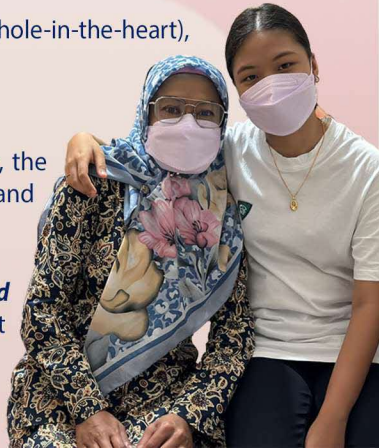

More than two-thirds of our recipients are aged 45 and above, thus the support received restores the second half of their lives and empowers them to continue living their golden years.

Diagnosed during pregnancy with Congenital Heart Disease (hole-in-the-heart), Mdm Ina has been battling with her Atrial Septal Defect with Pulmonary Hypertension condition.

Unable to work and with her husband as the sole breadwinner, the family struggled financially to both raise their newborn daughter and afford the treatment costs.

Thanks to the NUHCS Heart Fund donors, Mdm Ina, 49, pictured on the left with her daughter, now receives long-term care that brings her family a peace of mind and hope for the future.
